TAX SQUABBLE IS BIG STATE ISSUE

Prohibition, Agriculture, Other Matters Up, Says Matheson.

Legislation on taxes, agriculture and the prohibition issue, according to Assemblyman A. J. Matheson, Janesville, will be outstanding matters before the present session of Wisconsin law-makers at Madison. Since the opening session there has been a rush to introduce bills, the committee to hold hearings to be prepared for reports to the assembly and senate.

"Apparently the administration forces are not united on any single tax program," it was stated. "Rather the tax legislation will come from a series of individual bills with the final law coming from a large number of bills instead of one."

"A good many representatives have personal views on the taxation subject, and it is declared, much time will have to be used in cutting and whipping into shape the tax reform legislation."

Finance Committee Busy

One of the outstanding busy bills is the public insurance law providing insurance against non-employment.

The finance committee has been extremely busy the last few days, having evidence from the departments, bureaus and commissions. The industrial commission is seeking a $310,000 a year appropriation.

One of the main agricultural bills is the appropriation for carrying on the area and accredited testing work to eradicate bovine tuberculosis. The department of agriculture favors a program of $1,000,000 a year for four years to clean up the entire state by area testing. The appropriation last year was $350,000 and the money is now exhausted to pay indemnity for infected cattle.

There is an effort to raise funds from the state to build a new cattle barn for the state fair. Funds were passed at a recent session which are now available to improve the grandstand.

Agricultural Bills

Suggestions to the agriculture of the state by way of laws are expected to result from the conference being held in Madison this week. Cooperative marketing, grading, branding and other suggestions are certain to be made to the legislature after the Madison meeting.

"The dry interests would be glad to leave the prohibition laws just as they are and stop spending time in the legislature on prohibition matters," declared Mr. Matheson. "However the dry interests do not raise the prohibition question and are attempting to endanger the laws on the books. The wetts seem to have been encouraged at the last session and are prepared to push through numerous bills to weaken or destroy the effects of the laws now on the books."

COOPERATIVE FARM MARKETING URGED

Farmers' Conference Hears Expert on Merchandising Methods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison—Cooperative merchandising of farm products was advocated as the one feasible means of solving the agricultural marketing problem of the country by Prof. Theodore Macklin, professor of agricultural economics at the Wisconsin Agricultural college, speaking Tuesday before the Farmers' conference here.

Underproduction is a hopeless way to try to help farmers' life, Prof. Macklin declared. Instead, he said, the producers should attempt to make "two consumers grow where one grew before, by cooperative merchandising."

"Unusually service must be given by Wisconsin farmers if they are seriously interested in improving their purchasing power," he continued.

"To accomplish this, farmers must establish a successful cooperative sales system."

"There are seven essentials to such a system. They must be a cooperative commodity marketing company, to which farmers must deliver all of the commodity to be sold. The marketing company must be standardized and made better, and attractively named and advertised. Cooperation of the distributing trade will have to be secured, and the distribution so timed to meet the consumers' desire. Finally the farmer who makes the better product must receive the better pay."

Mr. Macklin is a leader of the agricultural movement in Ireland and a member of the Irish senate, is to address the conference today on the need for a complete reorganization of the movement.

A show of Wisconsin's pure bred grain opened today under direction of the agricultural experiment station.

Silver Advocates Ford Shoals Plan

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington—Acceptance of Henry Ford's Muscle Shoals offer was urged before the House agriculture committee Monday by Gray Silver of the American Farm Bureau Federation, at hearings on a resolution authorizing the government to purchase $10,000,000 worth of Chilean nitrates for distribution in this country. Mr. Silver said the Muscle Shoals plant would be able to produce nitrates at 6 cents a pound, instead of 22 cents now charged for the Chilean product.

The jury in Judge Oscar Hebel's court placed the penalty at a fine of $1,000.

BLAINE ASKS DATA ON EX-SERVICE MEN IN GEORGIA PRISONS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Atlanta—Governor Hargraves has received a letter from Governor John Blaine of Wisconsin, asking for a list of ex-service men confined in prisons, reformatories or other penal institutions in Georgia together with a history of their cases.

Governor Blaine says investigation in Wisconsin convinces him that former soldiers serving terms for infractions of the law in the majority of the cases have become criminals through mental troubles resulting from wounds or experiences in the service.

He says he believes this condition exists in other states and intends to ask special legislation for ex-soldiers in Wisconsin.

MONDELL MAY BE FALL'S SUCCESSOR

Shifting of Work from P. O. Department Also Is Held Possibility.

Copyright, 1922, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington—President Harding has not yet made up his mind whom he will appoint as secretary of the interior to succeed Albert F. Hall, who retired on March 4th.

The friends of Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, republican leader of the house, think he has a good chance of being invited into the cabinet.

Mr. Mondell, who has been a member of the west since 1880, has been invited to make a tour of the interior.

Two possible cabinet shifts have been discussed which have been their present transfer of Postmaster General Work of Colorado to be secretary of the interior, thus permitting Mr. Harding to name the senator Harry H. Hays, of Indiana, to be postmaster general, and the other plan contemplates Mr. Hoover's taking the secretaryship of the interior thus enabling Mr. Harding to appoint Albert B. Chandler, chairman of the shipping board, to be secretary of commerce. Mr. Hoover comes from California, and is a mining engineer, and is a favorite of the west. He would welcome his appointment to the job, but he feels he has become so deeply involved in the problems of the department of commerce that it is inadvisable for him to let go there. It has already been announced that the president offered the secretaryship of the interior to Mr. Hays, and that the latter declined. It might be that if Postmaster General Work were transferred to the interior portfolio, the appointment of Chandler to be postmaster general's place would be considered.

Mondell a Factor.
This is entirely apt, however, from the movement which seeks to place Mr. Mondell in the cabinet and merely illustrates the many moves of cabinet making which are being made. Mr. Mondell has been a factor in the cabinet for some time, and his removal would be a loss to the administration.

Lame Duck Plea.
The general inference has been that Mr. Mondell had no chance because he is a "lame duck" as the politicians call a man who has just been defeated for re-election. But Mr. Mondell's case is not quite the same as others in congress. His defeat was by no means an evidence of a lack of confidence in him by his constituents. He ran for the United States senate against Senator Kendrick, democrat, whose protection views were even higher than those of his republican opponent. It wasn't that Wyoming was displeased with Mr. Mondell's record in congress—the state just didn't feel like turning out Senator Kendrick. It would be conceded by men of both parties in Wyoming probably that had Mr. Mondell simply entered the race for re-election to the house as representative at large from Wyoming, he would have been re-elected easily as he has been so many times in the past. The desire to retain the honor of having a Wyoming man leader in the house of representatives would have been an even greater asset for him this time.

So it is doubtful whether Mr. Harding would dignify Mr. Mondell on the "lame duck" theory and it seems probable that he will be taken into the cabinet, the president may appoint the house leader to some other post of importance in the administration.

Illness of President.
The president has been retarded on many public matters because of his recent illness, but the selection of a new member of the cabinet will not long be delayed. Mr. Hall is expected to return to private business and usually the incumbent spends a little time familiarizing his successor with the details of his office. An appointment, probably will be announced within another fortnight.

One Day Left to Apply for 1923 Auto License Tags
Motorists have but one day more in which to make application for their 1923 automobile licenses. Chief Charles Newman advised Tuesday.

Two weeks ago the chief set Feb. 2 as the time limit for getting the new plates and he now warns that the drivers of unlicensed cars will be subject to being picked up by police after Wednesday and required to show evidence that they have applied for tags. The office of Secretary of State F. W. Zimmerman at Madison is so swamped with applications that difficulty is being experienced in issuing the tags faster than 10 days to two weeks from the date they are received. C. C. Bennett, state auto license inspector, is expected to be in the city soon to check up delinquent motorists.
